cents a person with the exception of Tuesday and Friday, when at all sessions of the show on those two days the admission will be fifty cents. On the evenings of these two days, however, vaudeville performers from the Orpheum and Mission theatres will be present and participate in a general program of entertainment for the benefit of the crowds present on those two nights, and altogether everything possible has been arranged that will in any way make for the general success of the event.

One of the finest and most complete exhibits of high class cars will be that of the L. J. Gilmer company. Mr. Gilmer has succeeded in popularizing his American models to an unusual extent, considering the short time he has been in the field locally, and in his booth will be seen two American Travelers, one red and one pearl gray; one American seven-passenger touring car, finished in light blue; and one American Bulldog Roadster, finished in battleship gray.

Besides these cars the company will exhibit two models of the Croxton-Keeton machines, one a five-passenger suburban, finished in orange and black, fully equipped, and a Croxton-Keeton Taxicab, finished in blue. The company has delivered to Don H. Porter at Stockton, California, the new American seven-passenger touring car, purchased by him before leaving Salt Lake.

The exhibit of the Packard Motor Car company at the Tenth National Automobile Show in Madison Square Garden expressed the great progress which has been made by the Packard company in the production of enclosed bodies. The feature of the exhibit was a blue and gray Packard "Thirty," with limousine body. The Packard "Eighteen" town car was shown as a laundaulet, painted in brown and strikingly trimmed in orange and light blue. The third car in the exhibit was a Packard "Thirty" phaeton entirely in white, with Roman gold trimmings. On account of the lack of space, the older types of cars with which the public is more familiar, such as the standard touring car and runabout, were not shown. All three of the exhibited cars are exceptional examples of harmonious and beautiful effects obtained by the careful matching of details. The trimmings of the enclosed cars are especially imported materials. The interior of the limousine is in exact keeping with the painting of the car, being done in blue and gray silk brocade. All of the bright metal parts are silver-plated.
